

RESEARCH PARTICIPANTS WANTED

Are you a professional Music Therapist?

“THE EFFICACY OF MUSIC THERAPY, FROM THE THERAPIST’S PERSPECTIVE”

Who am I?

My name is Faye, I am a musician and a Masters Psychology student at Manchester Metropolitan University (UK). I am looking to recruit UK and international participants to take part in a qualitative, empirical study about how music therapy achieves its positive outcomes.

What am I researching?

The aim of this study is to broaden the academic conversation around how and why this unique form of therapy works by including the views and opinions of the therapist, which, for the most part, is missing in the current literature.

Why am I researching this?

I am interested in raising further public, academic and professional awareness of music therapy, and its seemingly endless forms of application to the therapeutic world of psychology and medicine.

Participant requirements:

You need to be over 18 and a qualified music therapist, with at least 12 months experience. Be willing to take part in a short, semi-structured, online interview through Microsoft Teams, approx. 30-45mins, between now and March 2025.

How to let me know you are interested?

If you are interested in adding your voice and experience to this study, or simply want to know more, please contact me via email:
